

Financial Reporting for Financial Institutions

BASIC CONCEPTS

MUTUAL FUNDS

In India, mutual funds are regulated by SEBI (Mutual Funds) Regulations, 1996. According to the SEBI (Mutual Funds) Regulations, 1996, a 'mutual fund' means a fund established in the form of a trust to raise monies through the sale of units to the public under one or more schemes for investing in securities including money market instruments. A mutual fund should be registered with SEBI.

A Mutual Fund is a trust that pools the savings of a number of investors who share a common financial goal.

The money thus collected is invested by the fund manager in different types of securities depending upon the objective of the scheme. These could range from shares to debentures to money market instruments

Types of Mutual Funds

On the basis of Structure- The mutual fund schemes can be classified as open ended and close ended. The open-ended schemes permit entry by subscription or exit by sale of units on a continuous basis. The mutual fund announces daily sale and repurchase prices of units for the purpose. . The sale and repurchase prices announced by a mutual fund are based on Net Asset Value (NAV) and hence are called the NAV related prices. The close-ended funds have fixed maturity periods e.g. 5-7 years. These schemes are kept open for subscription only during a specified period at the time of launch of the scheme. To provide liquidity, the units are however listed on stock exchanges.

On the basis of Investors Objectives- In terms of investment objectives, mutual fund schemes can be classified as the growth funds and income funds. The growth funds invest major parts of their corpus in equity instruments and hence are exposed to comparatively higher risks. These schemes are expected to provide higher return in form of dividends and capital appreciation. Income funds invest in fixed income debt instruments, e.g. corporate debentures, Government securities and money market instruments and hence are also called the debt funds. They provide steady flow of comparatively lower return for lower risks.

Mutual funds sell their shares to public and redeem them at current Net Asset Value (NAV) which is calculated as under –

8.2 Financial Reporting

Total market value of all MF holdings - All MF liabilities

Unit size

The net asset value of a mutual fund scheme is basically the per unit market value of all the assets of the scheme. If the NAV is more than the face value (₹ 10), it means your money has appreciated and vice versa.

Every mutual fund or the asset management company is required to prepare in respect of each financial year an annual report and annual statement of accounts of the schemes and the fund as specified in Eleventh Schedule.

Mutual Funds

Question1

What do you mean by "Net asset value" (NAV) in case of mutual fund units?

Answer

Mutual funds sell their shares to public and redeem them at current Net Asset Value (NAV) which is calculated as under:

$$\frac{\text{Total market value of all Mutual Fund holdings} - \text{All Mutual Fund liabilities}}{\text{Unit size}}$$

The net asset value of a mutual fund scheme is basically the per unit market value of all the assets of the scheme. Simply stated, NAV is the value of the assets of each unit of the scheme, or even simpler value of one unit of the scheme. Thus, if the NAV is more than the face value (₹ 10), it means your money has appreciated and vice versa. NAV also includes dividends, interest accruals and reduction of liabilities and expenses, besides market value of investments. NAV is the value of net assets under a mutual fund scheme. The NAV per unit is NAV of the scheme divided by number of units outstanding. NAV of a scheme keeps on changing with change in market value of portfolio under the scheme.

- (ii) What should be the value of investments as on 31.3.2012?
- (iii) Is it possible to off-set depreciation in investment in mutual funds against appreciation of the value of investment in equity shares and government securities?
