January Issue Was Interesting

The January 2007 issue of the journal made very interesting reading, especially the articles on Forensic Accounting and Banking Frauds. The concept and implementation of Anti-Frauds programmes and Forensic Advisory Services (FAS) are assuming greater importance these days. Welcome Accounting Standard-30! The article on Healthy Diet was also quite interesting.

In the December 2006 issue, it was heartening to read the 'Face 2 Face' with Union Minister of Commerce & Industry Mr. Kamal Nath. His views and vision augur more professional opportunities.

Info on Panels of Auditors desired

The journal in its new avatar has become a must read for the professionals. Every Issue is carrying new things for us to know and learn. I treat it as if attending a CPE programme. However, it will be more valuable to us if it carries state-wise list and addresses of institutions/corporations, which are maintaining panel of auditors. The practice of giving quotations should be extended to every page of the journal.

Encouraging Trend

The trend of the placement of the professionals and highest salary offered to them as published in December 2006 issue of the journal looks very attractive. It proves that not only the practice but the jobs too are fast acquiring charisma in present times of fast-paced globalisation.

Article on Supreme Court

The article on 'Supreme Court' in November 2006 issue was an excellent informative guide for professionals and gave a bird's-eye view of the functioning and jurisdiction of apex judiciary. Further, it will be better if various other aspects of judiciary too are covered in the journal, like procedural matters etc. which would be of great help to the CAs who could very well blend their professional expertise with awareness on overall aspects of the judicial system.

Opportunities in Railways

It's a well known fact that our Indian Railways is the biggest employer in Asia. However, I think it's not utilising the services of the Chartered Accountants to the extent it should, either as an outside professional or as an employee. The CAs can serve the Railways in several areas particularly in internal auditing, inspection and accounting reconciliation.

LIC Scheme for CAs

I am a wife of a CA and would like to thank the ICAI for having launched a scheme in association with LIC for the well-being of the CAs and their family members. Hats off to CABF and LIC. More such welfare schemes are desirable.
